The skills colleges don't teach.

College teaches concepts. The industry expects execution. This program closes the gap with industry-inspired tasks, mentor collaboration and professional workflows — so you graduate with experience, not theory.

Real Development Workflow

How software moves from idea to shipped product.

Industry Mentorship

Direct guidance from professionals who build for a living.

Git & GitHub

Branches, pull requests and the flow teams rely on.

Communication

Writing updates and presenting your work clearly.

Agile Practice

Sprints, standups and iterating like modern teams.

Debugging

Reading errors calmly and tracing problems to root.

Code Reviews

Feedback that makes code — and coders — better.

Documentation

READMEs, specs and notes people actually read.

Portfolio Building

Turning your work into proof that gets you shortlisted.

09 - FAQ

Questions, answered.

Do I need coding experience?

Basic computer knowledge is enough; the program supports different learning levels.

Will I work on real projects?

Yes — every participant ships mentor-reviewed project work for their portfolio.

Is the program online?

Yes, fully online — join from any city alongside college.
